About the Seminar

Pandemic psychology deals with the psychological factors which are important in understanding and managing a pandemic situation. Hence is directly related to Health psychology. It mainly deals with the identification & rehabilitation of pandemic related issues in human beings, mainly psychological. This branch of psychology has an important role in spreading awareness to the mass population. It also stresses on positive responses and behaviour one should adopt during the pandemic period. Here the main target is to foster these adaptable changes & behaviours and maintenance of the same. Moreover, Pandemic psychology also includes pro-social behaviours, Panic behaviours and risk perception during pandemic period. All these help in reducing the rate and spread of the pandemic.
